"Live Wires" Enjoy Hike

Last Friday after school Mrs. Johnson and her "Live Wires" or the C.G.I.T. group enjoyed a hike to the coulee.

Here leader and girls skillfully prepared an out-of-doors supper which they all welcomed. The day was closed with sing-song and tape.

This was the last meeting for the year and the girls are looking forward to the time that will once again unite them in a C.G.I.T. group.

Those who enjoyed the hike were: Stella Arnold, Margaret Tate, Ruth Reeds, Marion Higginson, Gladys Geeson, Mildred Hill, Ethel Arnold, Dorothy Geeson, Ethel Tate, Rose Sharkey. Owing to a sprained ankle Marie Webber could not join the girls.

The group wishes to thank their leader (Mrs. Johnson) for the good time she has given them during the year, and hope that she will again lead them in the future.

The depressed price of farm products is a problem with which everyone is familiar, but on the 1913 basis farm product prices have never been as low as gasoline. Between 1913 and 1920 gasoline did not rise in price to nearly the same extent as farm products, yet since 1920 its price has almost continuously declined. The data for the above graph are based on figures published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

A DYING WAGE

WHEN I started business in 1880 our first rule was to pay a fair living wage.

In 1919 we decided a living wage was not enough. We should pay a dying wage, too. We knew how hard it is for the worker to make provision for his old age and for his dependents in the event of his death.

So we introduced benefits and pensions plans. Sickness benefits—the incapacitated employee to continue drawing pay according to his term of service; pensions—a fair living allowance for the worker who reaches old age; death benefits—a cheque immediately for the deceased worker's family. These things lifted a burden of care from our employees' shoulders—made them happier, more enterprising and more efficient. They lifted a burden from the shoulders of the Canadian taxpayer, too.

We are proud of these plans which have helped so much to build up a loyal organization of thousands of Canadian workers. Their devotion to their work has made it possible for us to serve Canada with quality products at lower and lower prices.

HOW TO MAKE ICED TEA

Infuse six heaping teaspoons of Salada Black Tea in a pint of fresh boiling water. After six minutes strain liquid into two-quart container. While hot, add 1½ cups of granulated sugar and the juice of 2 lemons. Stir well until sugar is dissolved; fill container with cold water. Do not allow tea to cool before adding the cold water; otherwise liquid will become cloudy. Serve with chilled ice.

"SALADA" ICED TEA

Funerals Without Flowers

Within recent months the writer has attended a number of funerals, joining with other friends and loved ones in paying respect to a deceased friend. Some of these funeral services have been held quietly and simply in the home, with only the nearest relatives and closest friends of the departed one present; others have been held in churches in order that the larger circle of the deceased's friends and associates in his or her life's activities might be present, or where the religious tenets of the departed might be properly observed. In one case just a few persons were present, people who had voluntarily made small contributions to prevent the remains of the one who had passed on from being consigned to the potter's field.

In the vast majority of cases there were flowers in profusion, wreaths, emblems, sprays, dozens and scores of them, representing an expenditure of many dollars. And the thought constantly protruded itself whether such lavish display of floral tokens was right, in good taste, even in keeping with our Christian beliefs. It could not be questioned that in many, probably most, instances these flowers were sent out of love or a sincere respect for the deceased. Equally true, no doubt, in numerous instances flowers were sent because it has become the custom to send them.

As a matter of fact, as in the case of weddings, the tendency seems to be in the direction of making funerals more and more elaborate, more expensive, more and more something of a spectacle. The quiet and simplicity in funerals of former days has largely passed, until now it has become a source of heavy expense and consequent worry to people who are not blessed with an over-abundance of this world's goods. Yet because of prevailing custom, nobody wishes to appear mean in the eyes of others when called upon to discharge the last duty to a loved one.

Many people think of these things, believe present customs are wrong, but seldom openly express themselves. In a recent spirited article entitled "Decent Christian Burial", Marian J. Castle attacked the extravagance attending funerals. She showed how sums spent on flowers, tombstones, pomp and ceremony, often impoverish the living families of the deceased. She wisely inferred that the dead might be happier if the funds shovelled upon their inanimate bodies were used instead to brighten the lot of the living.

Discussing this same subject, Alma Hedén, sister of Sven Hedén, the famous Swedish explorer, says it is in the spirit of the times in her country to seek the simplest and at the same time the most dignified memorial for those we have loved. She outlines various steps taken in this direction, including the provision of funeral insurance through the agency of a society, which takes charge of all funeral arrangements, which are the same for every individual. Payment can be made to the society at any time during the lifetime of the insured, the premium being smaller for the young than for the old. The highest premium is paid by those who are over 70, and is about $75 in all. This provides for a dignified funeral of a kind that might otherwise tax the resources of the bereaved family, especially when the deceased happens to be the breadwinner.

In Sweden, too, they have had since 1921 an organization called the Flower Fund, formed to honor the dead "in a more worthy and more lasting manner" than with ornate floral tributes for the bier. Instead of sending an expensive wreath, the friends of the deceased remit the money to the Flower Fund, which sends to the bereaved family a simple memorial message in the time of the giver. The amount contributed remains a confidence between the donor and the Fund.

It was decided that the money received in this way should be applied to obtaining houses with small apartments for old people in straitened circumstances. When three and a half years had passed, the Flower Fund erected a large building on a site donated by the city of Stockholm. Soon a second house rose by the side of the first, and before long six additional houses were built. By this means the Fund provides for more than a thousand old people. These pay a lower rent than they would pay elsewhere and receive care if they are ill. Otherwise they are quite free, and there is nothing institutional about the place. It is like a private home.

There is a restaurant in each building where residents can buy lunch or dinner for a quarter of a dollar. They may have meals sent to their rooms or prepare them in the small kitchen that accompanies each apartment. Food can be purchased in the building, and there is also a laundry and a bakery. The old people seem to be happy under these arrangements, for there are always more applications than can be filled.

Swedish death notices often contain a line asking that the Flower Fund be remembered. Sometimes another charity is named, for the example is contagious. The important thing is not that the money is donated to a single cause but that the memorial be given a form that will honor the dead by benefiting the living.

Does this Swedish idea not offer a suggestion to the people of other countries? Can we not make our tributes to our deceased loved ones something more lasting than quickly withered blossoms?

Fatal Kiss

Fruitful Method Of Transmitting T.B. To Children

"The kiss of the tubercular mother is often the kiss of death," stated Dr. H. E. Kleinschmidt, director of health education of the National Tuberculosis Association, New York. Dr. Kleinschmidt, who addressed the national health conference at Toronto, said "kissing is a high road in the spread of tuberculosis." While mothers always kiss their children full on the mouth, "they should realize that unless they have been examined and are certain that they have not tuberculosis in a transmissible form, their kiss may be a kiss of death."

Securing Farm Data

Department Collecting Statistics Relative To Agricultural Industry

As an aid to national planning the bureau of statistics at Ottawa is anxious to enlist co-operation of western farmers in the matter of supplying data regarding their holdings.

In June of each year, the bureau, in co-operation with the provincial departments of agriculture, distributes cardboard schedules to farmers for the purpose of collecting statistics of acreage under crop and the numbers of livestock and poultry on farms. An innovation of 1931 extended this survey to cover the breeding and marketing intentions with regard to livestock. In all of the provinces, except Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, Alberta and British Columbia, these schedules are distributed to the farmers through the rural school teachers.

Perished In The Desert

Bodies Of Man And Woman Found On Scorching Sands Of Sahara

A searching party found the bodies of an Englishwoman and an Englishman on the scorching Sahara sands recently and rescued two Frenchmen near death from thirst.

The woman, Mrs. Knight, widow of an English aviator who committed suicide recently at Agadez, French West Africa, had slashed her wrist apparently in an attempt to end her torture from thirst and heat.

A party of four—Mrs. Knight, Peyton, an English resident of Switzerland, and two Frenchmen, Kneebret and Chavekus—left Agadez by truck May 23 for Tamanrasset, Tawarek. After the quartette were missing four days a searching party left Agadez for them. It found the Frenchmen in a serious condition beside the truck near a dried-up river bed.

WHY HIS HEADACHES CEASED

Wife Put Kruschen in His Coffee

He could not understand why the headaches he had been subject to suddenly ceased. His wife told him, and he at once sat down and wrote the following letter:—
"I am 62 years of age, and ever since I was a boy of ten years, I was subject to very bad headaches. Two years ago the headaches stopped—for what reason I did not know. I was surprised when one day my wife told me I had been using Kruschen Salts in my coffee for over two years. I am still using them, as I know of nothing finer for the system."—J. T.

Headaches can nearly always be traced to a disordered stomach, and to the unassisted retention in the system of stagnating waste material which poisons the blood. Remove these poisons—prevent them forming again—and you'll never have to worry any more. And that is just how Kruschen Salts brings swift and lasting relief from headaches. Kruschen Salts aid Nature to cleanse your body completely of all clogging waste matter.

Control Of Press

Irish Newspapers Apprehensive Of Free State Policy

Hints thrown out in Dublin that the department of justice is contemplating to control the press, have created some apprehension among Irish newspapersmen. Spokesmen of Eamon de Valera's Republican government declare it has never got a square deal from the press, home or foreign.

Weekly letters sent from Dublin to papers published in the Irish provinces have also incurred displeasure of the government, acting through its official information bureau, and detectives of the special political branch of the police have been ordered to pursue inquiries as to the correspondents responsible.

Following a precedent set up by the government of William T. Cosgrave, Mr. de Valera's administration has begun the practice of withholding government advertisements from certain newspapers which actively support the opposition. The Cork Examiner, a daily newspaper in Munster, was deprived of advertising when it refused to publish a press release on the "Grow More Wheat" plan in full and without comment.

A Farm On Wheels

Has Given New York Children A Real Thrill

A crowd of New York school children of Manhattan, who get little thrill out of seeing notables promenade Broadway, went into a state of virtual delirium as they watched a farmer milk a cow.

The farm on wheels, complete with a farmer's daughter, was the idea of James V. Mulholland of the Parks Department, who wanted city children to see what a real barn looked like. Described as a sort of land-going ark mounted on a trailer, it played a number of three-day stands at various city parks.

When it began its barnstorming tour it was viewed by hundreds of school children who flocked to see it in Central Park at a "preview."

The personnel of the travelling "stock company" included a red Jersey Cow and her twin calves, a sheep and two lambs, a goat and two frisky kids about a month old, a white turkey gobbler, a little russet pig and a hen and four chicks.

The Advanced Registry hog feeding station at the University of Saskatchewan is now in full use at Saskatoon. This station, the first in the West, will be taxed to capacity this year, according to Professor Grant McEwen. The first three litter representatives arrived for testing in the Saskatchewan station early in May.

Medical World Endeavors To Discover Virus For Treating Common Colds

There is a virus that has something to do with the common cold and that's what so far has eluded the medical world. When it is discovered what that virus is, then the cold may be subdued.

"The germs of the common cold are well known," Dr. E. C. Sewall, of San Francisco, told the convention of the American Laryngological Association in Toronto, "although I believe there is a virus which is not yet known. This virus, in my opinion, is the product of all these germs that go to cause the common cold."

Persons who suffer from frequent colds are probably suffering from the same cold all the time, he said. He said a cold creates an immunity of six months or so.

"This," he said, "is probably the reason for the endemic source of colds. These people carry the source of infection in chronic sinus trouble and spread infection to other people."

Would Abolish Military Aviation

Londoners Vote For Limitation Of Armaments

Universal abolition of military aviation and limitation of armaments were favored by an overwhelming majority in a straw-vote conducted by the League of Nations union in Greater London, the union announced.

On these questions, and on the question of supporting the league and forbidding the manufacture of arms for profit, the vote favored the proposals by 1,400,000 to 100,000.

Londoners voted 1,375,061 to 88,521 for use of economic sanctions against an aggressor, whatever the nation might be, and 872,275 to 386,664 for use of military sanctions if they were found necessary.

Young Lambs Make Trip

Long Jaunt Did Not Appear To Harm Them

Young lambs are good "trailers." Recently the University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon, moved its ewe flock to summer pasture at Beaver Creek and the ewes, with lambs at foot, made 10 miles the first day and completed the journey easily the second. Some of these lambs were no more than four days old.

"The long jaunt did not appear to hurt the lambs a bit," said Dean A. M. Shaw, "and after their 10 mile trip they were fresh and perky. Of course, the weather was cool, but the observation is of particular interest to ranchers and B.C. sheepmen when moving their stock from winter to summer range."

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Nelson is a sub-deb, a gay, irresponsible girl of nineteen, with no care beyond the choice of her costume for her coming-out party. Suddenly, in the market crash, her indulgent father loses all he had, and his family is faced with the necessity of a simpler method of living. At this juncture a letter is received from an eccentric relative in Colorado, who offers the girl a home on what seems to be impossible conditions.

Now Go On With The Story

"Thus before they slept that night, the two young people knew that they were to go 'out West.' The arguments pro and con had waged for a good two hours, Aunt Louise protesting vigorously to the very last that her nephew would return East with the manners of a bear."

"And I warn you too, young man," she asserted grimly, "that you won't find life on a ranch the romantic dream you're picturing to yourself at present. As for your sister—"
At this point words failed her and she ended with a tragic gesture which caused even Nancy to smile a little. There was no doubt whatever that Aunt Louise could perceive no virtue in what she termed "this wild, ridiculous scheme of Jack's," and even Aunt Judy suggested with some reluctance that if the boy must go, it might be wise for him to go alone.

"All right," he retorted, impatient at what seemed a deadlock, "if Sis is too much of a hot-house flower to stand transplanting—if she can't put up with a few hardships a time like this, I will go alone, though possibly—"

He hesitated, and his father ended for him: "You're thinking that it's Nancy whom Cousin Columbine really wants to come?"

Jack nodded.

"She might not pay my carfare if I went alone, Dad."

"So if you go, it looks as if I'd have to," said the girl, bitterly. "I suppose if I get unbearably fed up with everything I can walk back." "Two thousand miles on the hoof!" grinned her brother, though perfectly aware that she spoke with sarcasm. "That's where your pioneer blood shows up, my dear! If you find our aged relative too impossible you can turn hitch-hiker. See here! I promise solemnly that if you can't stand the job after a month or two, we'll hitch-hike back together. The experiment won't cost Dad a cent, and the chances are we'll have a whale of a good time."

"Good time!" spluttered his paternal aunt; when Mother interrupted: "But, Louise, can you see any especially good times for the children if they stay at home?"

Every one turned to her in surprise; while Aunt Louise responded: "Surely, Margaret, you don't approve of this idea?"

"Not wholly; but I've a feeling that both Jack and Nancy will be happier in absolutely new surroundings for a time. It's not easy for young folks to adjust themselves to such radical changes as we'll have to make. Of course I shall worry about Nancy; but if she's too unhappy I think we can manage to bring her back without the necessity of hitch-hiking! What do you say, Nancy?"

It was then that Nancy, glancing at her father as if for help, saw something in his face that made her heart contract. For the first time she realized what this catastrophe had done to Dad. Why, he looked old! She thought in consternation. He looked worried—frantically worried; and all this talk was worrying him still more. Yet here she was hesitating to accept a chance to earn her living just because the thought of doing something hard—going so far away, seemed unendurable. What had Jack called her the other night? A parlor ornament? Well, he was right, wasn't he? That's about all she measured up to. For one swift illuminating moment the girl saw herself as others saw her, and was honestly appalled. Dad would never admit it, but her absence and Jack's would be a help just now. All this and more went through her mind in a revealing flash before she answered with new-born bravery.

"Of course I'm going! I had to get used to the idea, that's all. It may not be very exciting at Cousin Columbine's, Mother, but it'll be—interesting, won't it—seeing new things and places? Let's not talk any more. It's settled as far as I'm concerned. Come on, Jack, we'd better make a list of things to take."

"And don't forget your flannel nightgowns," spoke up the little brother; so, after all, the discussion ended on a smile.

CHAPTER V.

Waking suddenly at a nerve-racking jolt, Nancy sat up, wondering in that first startled instant, where she could be. Then her brain cleared and she realized that she was aboard a train headed for Colorado, and wondered if they had run into something, and she ought to waken Jack or get up and put on her clothes. Surely there had been no such jolt the night before. For a moment she listened tensely in expectation of some confusion; then raised the window shade, peering out into the dim, grey light of early morning.

The train had stopped before a station and her car was directly opposite the brightly lighted restaurant. Nancy could see a girl of about her own age dressed in a crisp, white uniform, serving some trainmen at a lunch counter. She wondered if the waitress had been up all night or was just beginning her day's work. Probably the latter, for she looked fresh enough—but what a ghastly hour to go to work.

A man and woman carrying suitcases emerged from the waiting room, and a moment later Nancy felt them brush by her section, speaking to the porter in hushed voices. A cheerful time to be starting on a journey, she thought ironically, but perhaps out here where the distances were so great, one had to start when one could.

There followed another jolt. Evidently the engine had been detached and was coupling on again. The wheels turned slowly, and then faster. Nancy strained her eyes to catch the name of the station—Dodge City—and shivering a little, pulled down the shade and snuggled under the blankets. So they were still in Kansas. Kansas! The idea that she could be there was incredible to Nancy Nelson. Why, Kansas had always seemed as far away as the North Pole—and fully as unattractive! People lived there, of course, but not people quite like themselves. At least, that was how the girl had thought about it; yet that waitress in the lunch room looked—why she looked every bit as up-to-date as the girls behind the lunch counters at Thompson's Spa on Washington Street in Boston.

This comparison brought a wave of homesickness to the unwilling exile. What a three weeks it had been since Jack received those telegrams from Cousin Columbine! Such a hectic time. Aunt Judy starting off for Europe with those crazy Spear girls. Hurried trips to Edgemere with Mother. Packing. Deciding what to take and what to leave behind. Getting tickets and reservations. And those last awful moments at the South Station with Phil wanting to know how they made the sections into beds and asking a thousand foolish questions. Mother smiling unutterably to keep from crying—Aunt Louise arriving at almost the last second with a box of candy and Dad, his face so terribly set and stern.

Just to recall it made Nancy shudder. Even Jack had lost his enthusiasm for a time and hadn't talked much until the train left Worcester. But a meal in the diner had restored his courage, and since then he'd been the jolliest of companions. She hadn't realized before how nice her brother really was. Not once had he compared her to a housewife dower or a parlor ornament. Not even when he caught her winking away some tears as the train pulled out.

Nancy slept after a while; but not for long. It was Jack who wakened her, slipping down from the upper berth and snapping up the window shade.

"Wake up, sis!" he commanded in an excited whisper. "Look where we are! Why, that's—that must be prairie!"

It was! Nancy sat up, almost as excited as her brother. Prairie! Miles and miles and miles of it, stretching endlessly into a far horizon. Neither of them had dimly realized the vastness of those great plains they were to cross—plains which lay dappled by morning sunlight, softly undulating, as if their astonished eyes could reach.

For the first time since starting on this journey, Nancy forgot her homesickness and was thrilled. She drew a breath born of both amazement and delight. To one whose entire life had been spent either in a crowded city or surrounded by the sheltering, green hills of New England, such limitless space was almost unbelievable. For a time she watched this unfamiliar world slip by, too awed for anything save exclamations. It all seemed wonderful: a herd of grazing cattle—a clump of cottonwoods beside an irrigating ditch—a schoolhouse set in curious isolation considering its purpose; and in the distance patches of green about some lonely ranch.

Even Jack was silent, too interested, perhaps, to comment; but at last he said: "Let's dress, Nancy. I want to get out and sniff this air at the next station. Breakfast at Syracuse anyhow, and say! I think the sun looks brighter here than it does at home."

This was no idle guess. The sun was brighter—the air more sparkling. Nancy admitted that she had never breathed such air. They cut short their breakfast in order to have more moments to pace the platform. "And in no time now," said Jack as they swung reluctantly aboard the train again, "we'll be in Colorado. I wonder who Cousin Columbine will send to meet us."

Nancy smiled.

"Do you remember her first letter? I was to sit quietly in the station until called for!"

"So you were! Do you suppose they'll keep up waiting long? Gee, Nancy! I just can't realize that this long trip is nearly over."

Neither could Nancy; but all too soon they found themselves waiting their turn to leave the train. Good-byes to friendly fellow passengers had been spoken. A smiling porter had brushed away the cinders. Nancy, standing behind Jack in the narrow passage, realized suddenly that the hands clutching her pocketbook were trembling. Indeed, all the fear that had gripped her on leaving home was back again as she emerged into the sunlight and joined her brother on the platform.

Jack, smiling a negative to an approaching red cap, rescued their bags from a pile of luggage, and moved toward the station—a beautiful station that made Nancy think of an English manor house. To the west, against an unbelievably blue sky, lowered snow-capped Pike's Peak, seeming so near in the clear atmosphere, that the girl felt she could reach out and touch it.

"This place certainly looks civilized enough," she observed breathlessly as Jack dropped the bags and stood looking about in search of the expected escort.

"Civified?" Her brother laughed. "What did you think you'd see? Wild Indians? Of course it's civilized; but—for the love o' Mike, Nancy, look there!"

Nancy looked. An Indian squaw was coming toward them, her shoulders covered by a gay, striped shawl, a wee black-eyed papoose strapped to her back. Said Jack, as she disappeared around a corner: "That relic of old times must have been ordered for our especial benefit. I didn't suppose they carried their kids like that in these days."

From birth to death

The Flu Menace

Disease Not So Dangerous If Isolated As Soon As Diagnosed

If influenza cases were isolated as soon as diagnosed, the death rate now attributed to the disease would drop to one per cent. of its present figure, Dr. J. W. McIntosh of Vancouver said in an address before the vital statistics section of the Ontario Public Health Association.

"I am perfectly convinced influenza is not a fatal disease," he said. He had tabulated 2,200 deaths attributed to "flu," but it had been found in all cases death had actually been caused by pneumonia or streptococcus, contracted because of overcrowding in hospitals and because of lowered resistance brought on by "flu," he said.

Were Voluntary Exiles

Famous Doctors Have Spent Months Alone In Interests of Science

It is not only in the frozen regions that men have exiled themselves for the sake of science. The famous Dr. Koch spent eighteen months, alone except for the white helper, on a desolate island in the centre of the great African lake, Victoria Nyanza.

He was investigating the dreaded sleeping sickness which was destroying the natives of the islands and shores of the lake, and made the discovery that the fly which spreads the disease lives on the blood of crocodiles, which it sucks between the scales. Destroy the crocodiles, and the carrier perishes, too.

Another man of medicine, Dr. Andries Verhagen, banished himself to the centre of the vast island of Sumatra to investigate beri-beri, another terrible tropical disease. On the way he was wrecked, and he and one companion who reached the shore in safety tried to make their way to the nearest native village.

They got into a swamp and were attacked by leeches, not the ordinary bloodsuckers, but a poisonous kind. Dr. Verhagen lost one eye and came very near to losing his life. Yet after he had recovered he continued his journey and gained valuable information about a cure for beri-beri.

Largest Music Library

Recognition Given To B.B.C. Collection Is World-Wide

A music library that began thirteen years ago in a tiny top floor room in the Strand, London, has now grown to be the largest of its kind in the world. Housed on the steel shelves of the British Broadcasting Corporation, this working library comprises 20,000 musical titles, ranging from a simple ballad for soprano and piano to a symphony in several movements. There are 100,000 vocal scores, covering the entire field from grand opera to musical comedy. The library contains some music not to be obtained elsewhere and thus brings the most notable productions within reach of the general public. Already ten million British homes rely on the B.B.C. Library for their musical fare, the excellence of which has received world-wide recognition.—The New Outlook

Pageant Scene Banned

Gordon Riots Will Not Be Depicted In London

Depicting the Gordon riots of 1780, one of the 12 historical episodes being rehearsed for the Tower of London Pageant in London, has been banned by the British Home Office. No reason, it is understood, has been given for the ban, but another episode is to be substituted. The object of the pageant is to raise funds for the Tower Hill Improvement Organization, of which the Prince of Wales is patron. Lord George Gordon, headed the mob which, in June, 1780, marched in procession to the Houses of Parliament to present a monstrous petition against the Catholic Relief Act. A riot followed and continued for several days, during which the city was virtually at the mercy of the mob.

Little Helps For This Week

"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Matthew 19:19.

So others shall take heart and labor to their heart and hand. From thy hand, and thy heart, and thy brave cheer. And God's grace magnify through thee to all. The least flower with a brimming cup may stand. And share its dewdrop with another near.

What is meant by our neighbor we cannot doubt, it is everyone with whom we are brought into contact. First of all he is literally our neighbor who is next to us in our own family and household. Then it is he who is close to us in our own neighborhood, our own town, in our own street. With these all charity begins. To love and be kind to these is the beginning of all true religion. But besides these, as our Lord teaches, is the one who is thrown across our path by the changes and chances of life, he or she whose help it is that we have means of helping, the unfortunate stranger we may meet in travelling, the friend whom no one else cares to look after.
